

Way Out West

Way Out West covers the range from Nogales, Arizona to Telluride, Colorado and from Deming, NM to Los Angeles, CA. They've taken Western music to England, Germany, and Switzerland; played for Chinese generals, fresh to Tucson from a meeting with the President; and performed at the Silver Spur Awards in L.A., celebrating the movie and TV stars of the silver and golden screen!

Emmy Creigh, with her command of Spanish, mastery of the guitar and mandolin, and fine voice, is the true Western talent of Way Out West.

Born in Kansas, Emmy arrived in Arizona early on, riding the washes and canyons of the Southwest and Tucson. She summered in Colorado and grew up listening to Marty Robbins. She penned one of Way Out West's favorite tunes "Arizona April," while considering how she missed the beautiful spring of a Sonoran desert. In addition to guitar and mandolin, Emmy provides percussion on cascabeles (snake rattles).

Tom Poley is a 5-string philosopher in a 10-gallon hat. He's a multi-instrumentalist (banjo, guitar, mandolin, and harmonica) who writes, sings, and plays Western music from the heart and with a belief that Western music needs to be memorialized and promoted. His tune "The Old Bar None" puts the "way out" in Way Out West and "Pancho Villa Slept Here" puts the "border" in bordergrass. And you really don't want be late for chow when Tom cooks chiles relleños!

Slim Rost completes the trio vocally and with the bunkhouse (or doghouse) bass. Slim sets the gait for Way Out West and holds the songs together like tight rawhide. He brings additional song writing talent to the trio. Slim's song "Miner's Dream" is a reflection on miners who searched for gold around the Superstition Mountains. And "Arizona Moon" is a love song with a loping rhythm that's a mainstay of Western music.

Way Out West delivers a lively show of traditional and original music, with stories and poems of cowboys, ranchers, and settlers of the American West. When the crowd is ready to move, Way Out

West can get folks singing along with the favorites of Western music!

Way Out

West makes music what it should be ... dadgum fun!
